Two employees of the New London Northern R. R. were fatally injured near here 50 years ago, one dying almost instantly the other living only a few days.

Several other interesting happenings of '72 are told in the columns of this Bulletin as follows:

Monday July 1, 1872—Frederick C. Schufeldt an employee of the New London Northern Road was fatally injured below Mohegan Saturday morning. While standing on a platform car one of the iron rails with which it was loaded fell to the ground and one end of it whirled around by the rapid motion of the train, struck him in the leg and groin, knocking him from the car and through a board fence. He was brought to this city and Sunday morning the very difficult operation of re-section was performed. A large part of the bone of one leg being removed. The propriety of the operation was questioned, but as it afforded the only means of saving the life of the patient it was finally resolved upon. He rallied but in the afternoon suffered a relapse and died very suddenly.

Frederick Lincoln, a brakeman on the same line, was struck by the West Side bridge Saturday, as he passed under it standing on a car. He remained in a comatose condition until Sunday afternoon and it is feared that his injuries will be fatal as they are about the head.

Theron Ames of Greenville has had hard luck of late. Friday he fell and sprained his shoulder, and on Saturday added a broken thumb to his injuries. He is doing nicely.

F. W. Treadways barn on Hill street was set afire Saturday by boys playing with matches but was extinguished without an alarm.

Tuesday July 2, 1872—The annual contest for the Williams prize for reciting took place at the Free Academy Monday evening a large audience filling the hall despite the intolerable heat. Without making any invidious distinctions it may be said that Standman "Astrea" was admirably read by Miss Butts and that Miss Raymond, Miss Brennan and Miss Smith also deserved special mention. Those who took part in the readings were Miss Annie A. Sholes, Miss Mary E. Hunt, Miss Grace Palmer, Miss Ella J. Shepard, Miss Emma J. Smith, Miss Sarah E. McNeely, Miss Ella W. Raymond, Miss Jennie E. Parker, Miss Della M. Brennan, Miss Carrie Hold-en, Miss Emma A. Spencer, and Miss Matilda Butts.

The Woolsey scholarship at Yale has been awarded to C. T. Chester, and the Runk scholarship to H. S. Gulliver both of this city.

Charles Walker was bitten by a dog Monday while standing in the doorway of Lewis grocery store. The dog will never bite again if six feet of earth can keep him down.

Wednesday, July 3, 1872—Closing exercises of the Grammar School were held Wednesday afternoon, a large audience, with pupils filling the spacious senior hall. The Rev. Mr. Paine closed with prayer and prayer and opened the exercises with prayer and a pleasing program followed, the graduating class showing the effects of the fine training received during the year. The valedictory address was given by Master C. P. Hempstead. Addresses were also made by Mr. Greenwood chairman of the board of education and Rev. Mr. Dana.

The water in the city reservoir yesterday was four feet and one inch below high water mark, that lowest it has reached since the great draught last year.

Two fires in Central Village Tuesday night resulted in the death of two young men. The two and a half story tenement house of the Central Manufacturing Company was totally destroyed by fire, two young men roomers losing their lives. Another fire was set in the railroad depot later in the day but was extinguished before any harm was done. A. F. Smith of Smith Brothers has returned home from a six months visit in California.

Friday, July 5, 1872—The fire in Myers and Bailey's shop on Franklin street early Thursday morning amounted to a loss of about $15,000. The fire broke out shortly after midnight in the part occupied by Barnes & Company, cork cutters, and was not under control until about 4 o'clock. Myers & Bailey had $2500 fully insured. Barnes & Company $400 fully insured. Brown & Sterry $100, by water, and Vogel & Hughes, $8000 of which only $1000 in insurance was covered.

The fiery fourth has passed with plenty of noise despite the order of the mayor that no fireworks be used in the city. Several reports of injuries were received and several fire calls sent in.

Saturday, July 5, 1872—The Post says that colossal statue, twelve feet high, representing a private soldier in full uniform, is being cut at Westbury granite at Battersea's quarry for the Norwich Soldiers' Monument. The massive pedestal is being cut at Westbury. The entire height of the monument including the statue will be twenty feet.

The cost will be about $15,000. It is expected that the monument will be in place by next summer.

A Voluntown man without a mustache thought he would look better with one if he was in N. Y. his picture taken so he used some chemicals which he found in the photographers collection. The chemicals were powerful acids and when the man once wore his lip he carries raw meat today.
